AMUSEMENTS.

Grand-Rice's "1492" To-Night. The engagement of Rice's big "1492" company opens at the Grand to-night and coninues the remainder of the week, including a popular Saturday matinee. "1492" is the best extravaganza that Rice has lent his name to since he launched "Evangeline," eighteen years ago, and, like that production, it is full of color, pretty girls, bright music, attractive costumes and clever hits at the fads of the day. The strongest organization that has yet appeared in the play will be seen here. It includes fifty-five people and its own orchestra. Prominent in the company will be found Bessie Bonehill whose impersonation of male characters has the applause of two continents, Mr. Richard Harlow, whose impersonation of the female role of sabella in "1492" has been equally as striking as Miss Bonehill, and both of these artists have been commended everywhere for the finish, grace and refinesaid to be most fetching, and Richard Harlow, in his impersonation of female roles, is lescribed as gorgeous. As an additional attraction, the original Kilanyi living picture will be seen with this organization. There have been many futile efforts to imitate these wonderful life pictures, but Mr. Kilanyi

"The Character of Macbeth." NEW YORK, Nev. 20 .- Sir Henry Irving delivered an address to the students of Coumbia College to-day, on "The Character of Macbeth." Sir Henry began by saying: "The generally received opinion regarding Macbeth has been that of a good man who has gone wrong under the influence of a wicked and dominant wife. The tradition has been in force for many years, and was mainly due to the powerful rendering of the character of Lady Macbeth by Mrs. Siddons, whose strong personality lent itself to the view of an essentially powerful and domnant woman, and, as the play was not given as often as might have been expected, the tradition flourished without challenge of any kind, save now and then some scholarly comment which practically never reached the masses. I think we shall find that Shakspeare in his text gives Macbeth as one of the most bloody-minded, hypocritical vil-lains in all his long gallery of portraits of men instinct with the virtues and vices of

Sir Henry then, by quotation of lines and ield argument, proceeded to defend Lady Macbeth, and said: "It is quite possible that Macbeth led his wife to believe that she was leading him on. It was a part of his hypocritical nature to work to her moral ownfall in such a way. We see a similar istance of his hypocrisy in the scene in the he new-given title of the King, 'Thane of He answers, 'The Thane of Cawg up of Sir Henry's idea o Macbeth was clear-cut and not devoid of poetic idea in itself. He said: "A poetic mind, on which the presages and sugges-tions of supernatural things could work; a ature sensitve to intellectual emotion. hat one can imagine him even in his conning, playing with conscience so hat action and reaction of poetic thought night send emotional waves through the brain whilst the resolution was as grimly fixed as steel and use heart as cold as ice a poet supreme in the power of words, with vivid imagination and quick sympathy of intellect; a villain cold-blooded, selfish, renorseless, with a true villain's nerve and allousness when braced to evil work, and vsical heroism of those who are born II; a moral nature with only sufficient veakness to quake momentarily before suus terrors; a man of sentiment and not of feeling. Alvary in "Die Walkure." CHICAGO, Nov. 20 .- The third performance of the Damrosch opera season at the Auditorium this evening, "Die Walkure," was witnessed by a large and decidedly of Max Alvary this season doubtless caustendance. Notwithstanding his recent indisposition, the great tenor seemed in per-fect condition and charmed his audience as of yore. Frau Klafsky as Brunhilde, deepened the more than favorable impression created by her at the opening per-formance Monday evening and from her opening song the vast audience seemed to forget all rules and repeatedly burst into applause. Both Klafsky and Alvary were called before the curtain again and again and the night will rank as one of the most demonstrative and enthusiastic in the history of the house.

Another War Play Produced. BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 .- A large and fashionable audience filled Albaugh's Lyceum Theater to-night to witness the initial production of "A Woman of War," a new play of great local interest. The play, which is the work of Miss Louise Malloy, of this city, is founded upon General Felix Angus's famous book of the same name, which in turn treats of incidents which actually occurred during General Angus's term of service in the federal army. It deals with the part filled by the women in the South during the rebellion and brings forward their courage and devotion to the cause of the Confederacy in the strongest of lights. The cast was made up of members of he Foyer Club.

Another New York Failure. NEW YORK, Nov. 20 .- Marie Jansen led in a strike at the Garrick Theater to-night. The members of "The Merry Countess" company claim that they have not been paid for the past month or more. The owners of the company, Miss Jansen claims, promised to pay back salaries tonight, but they falled to appear at the theater and the strike resulted. No performance was given to-night. #### LEFT WITH THE FUNDS. A Story of the Way Wilson, of Wash ington, Was Elected.

Washington Post. "The return of Senator John L. Wilson, of Washington, to the city, calls to mind his election last winter," said a lounger at Willard's yesterday. "Wilson made his fight entirely on the silver question, while his only formidable opponent stood on a gold platform. When the Legislature convened in Olympia, everything pointed to Wilson's defeat. Levi Ankeny, a banker of Walla Walla, had carried on a systematic campaign, had a press manager, and was unstinted in the use of his money. It was surely an Ankeny Legislature and sound money was booked to win. The first day's balloting revealed the surprising fact that there were thers, to change a familiar phrase slight-Wilson had about as much strength as the banker. Several days passed and the ituation remained unchanged. There was talk of a repetition of the deadlock of the preceding year, when John B. Allen failed to be returned to the Senate. It was necessary for the Ankeny forces to pull them-selves together and to do this some money for campaign purposes was needed. Entertain the boys and get their votes,' urged the Ankeny managers, 'for Wilson has no miney.' The banker was called on and respo promptly. A messenger, the press manager, was dispatched for money. It was placed in a satchel and checked at the hotel for the night. The press manager was a newspaper man, noted for his convivial disposition and general popularity. The money was safe with him. In the dead of night he arose from his bed, went down to the clerk, got his enthusiastic audience, the first appearance satchel, the one with the boodle, and a of Max Alvary this season doubtless causlater, had him for a passenger. The election of Wilson followed in a few days. It is said that the press manager carried away an amount of money estimated at from $5,000 to $20,000. Whatever the amount, there was a scandal which was suppressed, but no effort has ever been made to apprehend the man who, by stealing from Ankeny, elected

Detroit Tribune. It is strange that a man who has been so onored as John Sherman has been, she nurse such bitterness because he has failed of one particular prize. Many, who would have rejoiced to have seen him President, will read this book with sorrow; it will not be so much sorrow that he did not gain his prize, as that the last years of a really great and useful life should be so embittered by the dregs of a disappointed ambi-tion. Many a one will rise from the perusal of these "Recollections" with the conviction that it was neither Garrield, nor Foster, nor Conkling who defeated him in 1880; nor was it Platt, nor Harrison, nor Alger who pre-vented his success in 1888. The cause lay nearer home, and it is disclosed in these volumes; and it existed in the character of the man whose grievances are here exhibited to the world.

A BOY'S CONFESSION THAT CAUSES A MUNCIE SENSATION.

White Cap Cases Drawing Crowds Anderson Court House-Strike off at Elwood.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MUNCIE, Ind., Nov. 20 .- Warrants have been issued for the arrest of James Shepp, York, does a big business every place he goes after crossing East river. That's with Ollie Hall and Thomas Duffy, two funny! captain of fire company No. 2, together members of the same company, charging Shepp with larceny and the other men with being accessories. The action is the result of a sworn statement made by a sixteen-yearold boy, James McCarty, to Mayor Conner, Superintendent of Police Fortner and members of the City Council. The publication of the charge here caused a sensation. The plaintiff alleges that he and his chum, "doubles" the part of the Pierrot and her pantomime is said to be the most suggestive and "Frenchy" of anything yet seen in New York. That being the case, language is not passionate enough to describe it.

plaintiff alleges that he and his chum, Charley Sheets, have been enticed to stay at the fire station nearly all the time for several months past, and that they were used as tools in committing petit larwere used as tools in committing petit larcenies. He states that Shepp accompanied them to chicken roosts at the home of Mrs. E. Anthony, James Ryan, Elsie Mcan adaption of a French drama founded on | Kinley, Albert Greeley and other places, where chickens were taken to the fire station for midnight banquets for friends, According to the boy's story the raids were made nearly every night. He was induced to steal nearly all of his mother's chickens and to get groceries for the station house and have them charged to her.

The two boys, he says, went to every fire and McCarty alleges that while the men were fighting the flames the two lads would at once flew to her shoulder, being pets. The boy then confessed to all the above. Some of the men at Station No. 1 are being implicated also.

Granville Shepp, a brother of one of the accused, has been chief of the Muncie fire department for several years. The firemen deny the charges, but many of the boy's statements are being corroborated by others. The preliminary hearing will occur to-morrow morning.

THE SUIT FILED.

Columbus Widow Asks $50,000 from Ex-Postmaster Wood, of Franklin. special to the Indianapolis Journal.

FRANKLIN, Ind., Nov. 20 .- Suit for 50,000 damages for alleged slander was begun here to-day against Thomas B. Wood, one of the most prominent citizens of Johnson county. The plaintiff is Mrs. Irene Roland, a widow of Columbus. James F. Brown, of this city, and Mrs. Roland were engaged to be married. Brown was to deed Mrs. Roland eighty acres of land and give her $1,000 in cash. It is said that Brown went to Wood and asked him his opinion of Mrs. Roland. It is alleged that Wood told Brown that Mrs. Roland was a woman of such character as to be untit for im to marry, giving his reasons for thinking so. Wood maintains that he made no statements that he cannot substantiate. Wood and Brown are retired farmers, both in good circumstances financialy. Wood has been prominent in politics for years and was postmaster under Grant two terms. Mrs. Roland's attorneys are Hon. George W. Cooper, of Columbus, and White & White, and Judge W. E. Johnson, of this Wood has retained Overstreet & Overstreet and Miller & Barnett. On account of the prominence of the parties and of a number of citizens here names are connected with the affair, the case promised to be one of the most sensational in the history of the county.

MADISON COUNTY TERRORS.

Trial of White Caps Attracting Attention at Anderson.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. ANDERSON, Ind., Nov. 20.-The famous "White Cap" cases are now on and are attracting people from all parts of the county. Judge Bundy, of New Castle, who is the judge in these cases, overruled the motion to dismiss the cases on a plea of abatement on account of alleged irregularities in making up the record of the grand jury. The day was well worn when the attorneys succeeded in selecting the jury, consisting of William Rybolt, Jacob Mittendorf, Ed McVaugh, Varias Virgin, John Jeck, Lewis Robinson, Joseph Cates, George S. Kinnard, Bert Parsons, Mark Patterson, J. M. Sullivan and Charles Newsome. They are all representative citizens and are regarded as exceptionally strong. Al Davis, Al Stinson and Hamp Richardson are the ones now under trial charged with arson. The interest to-day centered in the evidence of young Richardson, who turns State's evidence and will assist the proscution. Richardson related the story of the raid on Oct. 8, 1893. In company with his pal, Al Stipson and Davies, he says, he went to Pendleton that afternoon intending to hold up some people on the o stealing lap robes and buggy They started home, going through Hunts-On the way they overtook two girls and Stinson grabbed one by the head say-"Come on a trottin'." Den Toney Whitecapped.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. CARBON, Ind., Nov. 20.-The town Lena, two miles above here, is greatly excited this morning over the whitecapping of Den Touey last evening. Young Toucy has been "loafing" about Lena, living off his father. Tuesday he attempted to assault Miss Nellie Touey, his stepsister, who left home and went to a neighbor's and told what had happened. This en-raged the neighbors and about twenty-five formed a posse, went to Touey's and dragged him out. They stripped him and applied the lash till the blood came. Up to this time young Touey's father. John Touey, knew nothing of the affair and why his stepdaughter had left home. On learning the cause he went to town this morning and had a writ issued for the arrest of the boy, who has suddenly departed.

Elwood Tin-Plate Strike Off.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. ELWOOD, Ind., Nov. 20 .- Five of the sixteen idle mills in the hot mills department of the American tin-plate factory which were closed two weeks ago because of the strike in the cold-roll department, resumed operations to-day, and the remainder will start up to-morrow morning, when the big plant will be in full operation again with its 1,250 men. A committee of merchants waited on the company on behalf of the strikers, asking that they be taken back, but the company declined to discharge the new men who stood by them during the strike to make room for the strikers. The strikers can get back only as vacancies occur. The loss to labor has been fully $20,000, while the company's loss from the plant being idle in several departments will be several times that amount.

May Be a Murder.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. NEW CASTLE, Ind., Nov. 20 .- While eating dinner, yesterday, John Atkinson was seized with convulsions and died in a few minutes. The circumstances of the young man's sudden death were such as to excite suspicion that he had been poisoned. The case was made still more suspicious from the fact that he had been driven from home recently by his stepmother, returning last week. The entire community is worked up. Caroner Foutz viewed the body to-day and ordered an investigation. Physicians accordingly removed the stomach alvzed the contents. The result of the analvsis is not yet made public.

Attorney Neff Charged with Forgery. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WARSAW, Ind., Nov. 20 .- Omar Neff, an attorney of Milford, this county, is under arrest for forgery. Neff forged the name of William Kincald, a wealthy farmer, to a note for $2,300, which he disposed of at a Goshen bank. He then went to Ann Arbor. Mich.. where he was cantured by Sheriff Kidder, of Elkhart county, yesterday, and returned to Goshen and placed in jail. His bond was this morning fixed at $8,500, and was signed by his father, a minister, residing at Milford Junction.

Stranger Killed at Union City. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

UNION CITY, Ind., Nov. 20 .- West-bound passenger train No. 35 on the Big Four ran over and killed a man here this evening. His age is about thirty-five. The Man Who Whistles. New York Evening Post.

Mr. Paderewski is habitually as good na tured as Liszt was, and his manager, Mr Gorlitz, says he never saw him angry but once. The great planist has a pet aversion, and that is whistling—a habit which brings him to the verge of distraction. He has been known to leave the billiard room of the Windsor Hotel because somebody was whistling, and he once remarked to a friend that there was one thing in the world that could provoke him to commit murder, and that was a man who whistles. What must be his abhorrence of a whistling woman may be imagined. Every person of musical sensibility must share his antipathy. Next is the most piercing and painful of conceivable sounds, and, what makes it worse, ninety-nine whistlers in a hundred have no musical ear whatever. They meander along in a meaningless maze of incoherent sounds which makes one wonder why, if they are so unmusical, they should want all the world to know it. It may be laid down as a general rule that the less musical a person is, the more anxious he is to parade his "accomplishments" in public.

The Faulty Texas.

Washington Special in New York Mail and

The discovery that the battle ship Texas s faulty in construction has caused much omment here, and no little censure of the leveland administration, because her plans were brought from England by Mr. Cleve-land's first Secretary of the Navy, and it was heralded that she was to be somethin superior in her class. Now that the Texas may be a failure the old officials who have grown up in the service and passed through all the grades are laughing among themselves about the naval constructors who receive finishing touches to their education in England, and who have always favored English plans for our war ships. The Navy Department is now willing to admit that Cleveland's first administration was at fault, and are trying to smooth the whole matter over with as little publicity as pos but, notwithstanding all this, the undercurrent of criticism is strong and it is not unlikely that the House naval committee, when it meets next month, start an investigation.

Wants Grover to Get Out.

Ev-Governor Campbell does not gauge the stuation truly when he says that Mr. Cleveland is not called upon to deny that he is a candidate for a third term. While the President allows the movement for his reomination to gather such momentum as officeholders are willing to give it, he stands in the path of representative Democrats whose services warrant an ambition to lead party in the presidential campaign. There is no other reason than a disinclina-tion to begin a fight within the party over the third term idea why several candidates who might be named should not avow themselves to be candidates. * * * There is as much ambition in the Democratic party as in the Republican, and it would materialize very quickly if Mr. Cleveland would take nimself out of the way.

Captain Quigley Sent Over Town on an Inspection.

At the request of Mayor Taggart and on direct orders from Superintendent Colbert an inspection was made yesterday of all places where it was thought that gambling might be going on. The news of the investigation traveled faster than could the policemen and nowhere, so the officers say, was any indication of gambling found. No signs of there having been gambling were discovered. Captain Quigley directed the tour and he reports that old tables, around which once gathered the sports, were covered with dust. At a few places it was observed that preparations had been made to begin operations, but no gambling tools were found. The gamblers were disgusted by the inspection, for they held it to be Lines of contradictory to all ante-election under-standing. Mr. Taggart will have a very molding, standing. DRESS GOODS IDENTIFICATION.

It Was the Body of Miss Gardner Found at Hartford City.

Coroner Sage, of Hartford City, has been pleting the identification of the body of a young woman found in the woods south of that city last September. He is firmly con vinced that the body was that of Mary E Gardner, who disappeared from this city under mysterious circumstances last August. Miss Gardner was twenty-seven years of age. Her strange disappearance was noted in the Journal some time ago. She was a clairvoyant. While in this city Coroner Sage learned that the young woman's parents live in Washington. Ill., and they have never heard of her since she left this While here Miss Gardner lived with a Mrs. Bell. To the latter Miss Gardner said upon leaving she hoped never to return without she could find some more desirable employment than telling fortunes while away. Shortly before leaving Miss Gardner had a dress made. A piece left here matches the dress found on the body in the woods at Hartford City. Coroner Sage is satisfied that the body was that of Miss Gardner, and he and Mrs. Bell believe the unhappy young woman committed suicide. A letter from Mrs. Bell attracted Coroner Sage's attention to the clew which led to the identity. The body is burled in he came tery at Hartford City.

Taggart on the Love Feast. Mayor Taggart, who has won national distinction as the only really successful Democratic candidate of the year, was asked yesterday what he thought of the love feast A Republicans. "It impresses me as a very nice gathering of men," said Mr. Taggart, and then he added: "It reminds me of the scene following the first fair day after a hard winter. A crowd of boys get out on the fence, enjoy the supshine and imagine summer has come, but you know the first fair day is generally followed by more winter."

Harry Adams is credited with a story now being told concerning the mention of Mr. Taggart as the only logical candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. A Chicago paper suggested Mr. Taggart, but objection was made immediately because he was born in County Monoghan, because he was born in County Monoghan Ireland. Mr. Adams says an Irishman told him that Mr. Taggart should be electe
